Essential Supervisory Skills:

Realizing Talent in Others

February 15, 2024

Facilitated by:

Employees have latent talents and existing skills we often fail to leverage. Turning these talents into capabilities by developing others to their fullest potential is a leader's most important work – and a requirement for long-term organizational success. In this module leaders learn a collaborative process and skills to develop capabilities in others that meet the motivational needs of each individual and match the need of the organization to optimize results.

Intended Audience: All those who supervise/manage.
